These deputies are counted with the opposition and 189 with the Government. The main features of yesterday's elections were the winning of Kassen from the Liberals by "Canon King" Krupp. The retirement of Prof. Rudolf Virchow to private life at the end of his thirtieth year in the Reichstag, the defeat of Max Schmelt, the leader of the dissident Radicals, the Socialists in Stettin. The victory in Halle of Dr. Alex. Mayer, also a Radical leader, over the Social Democrat who held

THIRTY PAGES.

SUNDAY, JUNE 25, 1893.

Shower occurred last night in Missouri and portions of Illinois, Iowa and Kansas.
As Kansas City and Des Moines there were severe thunderstorms last night, and conditions are favorable for severe storms in this vicinity to-night. High temperatures are reported from Southeast Kansas, which may be expected in Missouri and Illinois to-day, giving place to cooler weather to-morrow or to-morrow night.

Forecast for Missouri: Fair, except possible showers, mostly cooler west.
Forecast for St. Louis and vicinity: Showers and severe local storms; cooler Sunday night.

MAUD McKIBBIN is doubly unfortunate.
She is confronted with a theory as well as a condition.

THE Coroner let the trail of the McKibbin case get exceedingly cold before unleashing the sleuths.

WHAT is the use of having a Street Commissioner who can keep neither the streets
nor the Street Department clean?

THE Bell in the Excise Commissioner's office gives out a mournful sound for the unlicensed saloonkeeper.

ED BUTLER'S idea seems to be that if he cannot get the "cinch" on the city he wants he will take the best he can get.

THE Mayor will do a great stroke of work for St. Louis if he breaks the political pull of the City Attorney's "nolle pro."

THE naval maneuvers in the Mediterranean last Thursday cost the British over $3,000,000. Peace is very dangerous to modern naval armaments.

THE sinking of the Victoria was a sad calamity, but it may do good in teaching the naval experts that floating, as well as fighting qualities are needed in warships.

ACCORDING to Shipbuilder Cramp the Victoria disaster demonstrates the excellence of the English ram. This is gratifying, but the demonstration was too costly.

EXCEPT for the loss of life the sinking of the British battleship was a good thing.
The world would be the better if every battleship were to sink the moment it is launched.

THE only regrettable feature about the Spanish Infante's visit to America was that she could not stay longer to give American toddlers a few more lessons in good democratic manners.

THE action of the House on the garbage ordinance will enable the city to have the collection better done than under the old ordinance. It will never be properly done, however, until the city does it.

WHEN national bank officers "reach out into the realms of speculation" it doesn't matter which way gold is flowing. Mr.
Eckels will have to teach these financiers legitimate business methods and common sense.

EX-Senator EDMUNDS is back from California in improved health and cheered by the assurance that Vermont's maple sugar bounty will be close to $70,000. There will doubtless be a bounty on Green Mountain rye should Mr. McKinley lead in 1896.

THE debtor has a chance when the stringency fairly sets in. The Louisville Post has discovered that business houses
do not like to sue in close times, apprehending that extra efforts to collect lead
the public to suppose them embarrassed.

EX-Senator EDMUNDS thinks the present monetary difficulties are all due to the election of a Democratic President and Congress. But he also thinks the Russian treaty providing for the extradition of patriots for forging passports is a good thing.

REV. DR. THOMAS will open the series of religious services to be given on the World's Fair Grounds on Sundays. Let us hope that more orthodox divines may be induced to aid in this work. All shades of religious feeling and opinion should be represented.

EX-Secretary FOSTER will settle with his creditors at 50 cents on the dollar.
This is about the basis of settlement which

Upole Sam would have had to propose to his creditors had not Mr. Foster's policy been ruthlessly condemned and repudiated by the people.

Loss of hair was a good reason for granting pensions during the Harrison Administration. This was denied by Commissioner Raum when the charge was first made, but as the bald-headed pensioner has been found the precedent may be accepted as established. Cases of this kind are what make the real veteran writhe.

EX-Commissioner BELL will not issue a license to any one who has been convicted of a violation of the dram shop law, but as there were few or no convictions the rule will not amount to much. It is one thing to be tried and found guilty and quite another to break the law, with the silent consent of the officer sworn to enforce it.

THE difficulty of getting at the truth in the McKibbin case has been vastly increased by the slowness and bungling methods of the Coroner. Instead of taking hold of the case at once when foul play was suggested by the attending physician he permitted ample time to elapse to destroy evidence and conceal traces of guilt before calling in the police.

THE report that the Populists will have control of all the Fourth of July celebrations in Kansas and will improve the opportunity offered by the glorious anniversary to instruct the masses in Populism may well alarm the sunflower Republicans. Parties in this country have always been too much inclined to use the old flag and the nation's natal day for political purposes. Even Decoration Day has at times been lugged in to help politicians.

NO EXTENUATING CIRCUMSTANCES.

The refusal of the Macon County (Ill.) Grand-jury to indict the lynchings who hanged the negro Sam Bush a few weeks ago places that community in a bad light.
The people of Illinois have been noted for their law abiding qualities and their devotion to public order. The State is thickly settled, the police and the courts efficient and all the conditions are favorable to a prompt and thorough execution of the laws. Every protection known to civilization is thrown around the citizen and when a wrong is done punishment is certain. And yet mob law was substituted for the ordinary procedure of justice.
Judge Lynch has assumed jurisdiction and the regularly constituted authorities abdicated in his favor.

Mob law, swift, irregular, impulsive and pitiless, may be explained, though not approved, in communities where courts cannot be depended upon to do justice and where circumstances conspire to aid criminals in committing offenses against the person and then help him to escape. But the people of Illinois cannot enter any such plea in extenuation. The murder of Sam Bush was coolly calculated, deliberately arranged and carried out in the heart of a large town and in presence of the officers whose duty the lynchings usurped. The hanging was a plain violation of law for which there is no excuse, and if the case is suffered to drop the reputation of the State will suffer from a stigma which cannot soon be obliterated.

Judge Vail should be sustained by the whole community in his determination to obtain an indictment and trial. The people of Decatur and Macon County in particular cannot afford to let the matter drop.

A NAVAL OBJECT LESSON.

The loss of H. M. S. Victoria is a tremendous naval object-lesson not only to England, but to the United States, whose new navy—on general principles at least—follows more or less closely the English example. That this lesson will not be thrown away upon the English Government, is certain, and if we are wise it will have a healthy effect upon our own.

The Victoria represented the latest and most approved type of battle ship; engines of 14,000 horse power, driving twin screws; compound armor of 16 to 18 inches in thickness, bulkheaded throughout, carrying fifteen guns, ranging 110 tons to five, with a gross tonnage of 10,470. To illustrate the difference between the old regime of naval construction and the new it may be mentioned that Nelson's flagship, the historic Victory (built in 1765 and still in fairly good preservation in Portsmouth harbor) has a tonnage of only 2,162. She is a "three-decker," designed to carry 104 guns, ranging from long 32-pounds to short 12s, with a few 68-pound carronades for close quarters. The metal weight of one of her broadsides of single-shot guns was 1,104 pounds, while a single gun (110 tons) of the Victoria throws a projectile of 1,800 pounds; and the Victoria's broadside requires only 325 pounds of powder, while the Victoria's must have not less than 3,000 pounds! Yet the broad-side which the Victoria gave the French ship Bucentaur, at the battle of Trafalgar, dismounted twenty of the latter's guns and killed and wounded 400 of her officers and men. It is doubtful whether the Victoria could do any better work than this in as short a time; though, of course, Nelson's ship would be no match for the ill-fated vessel in which Sir George Tryon and so many of his brave men went down.

But while nobody doubts the superiority
of the new battle ships as fighting machines, very many people are inclined to believe that this superiority is counterbalanced by their inferiority as floating machines.

Wood is buoyant, iron quite the reverse;
and an old sailor would much rather take his chances on board the Victoria in a heavy gale, than on the Victoria were she adrift. In other words, the new battle ships are, necessarily, exposed to perils from which the old ones were free; and there is no record of any wooden ship being knocked over and sunk in a slight squall, as was the iron-clad Captain off Cape Finisterre in 1870—when only eighteen out of 470 persons were saved.

It is a notorious fact that the class of ships to which the Victoria belonged are hard to handle, either in good or bad weather; in spite, too, of the most improved steering apparatus. There has scarcely been a series of fleet maneuvers in the English navy for the last fifteen years that has not been marked by one or more collisions; though, fortunately, without loss of life until now. Bad seamanship will not account for this altogether, when we remember that the maneuvers of the old wooden navies rarely or never had such accidents; though they had only sails to depend upon, while their modern successors have the invaluable aid of steam. It is bad steering that is to blame for the most of these collisions;
and the fault does not lie with the men at the wheel, but is due mainly, if not entirely, to the material and model of the ship itself—and the larger the ship the harder to handle.

The lesson of the Victoria disaster is that war vessels may be, and are, many of them, so large as to be at once clumsy and unsafe; and that smaller and lighter ships have decided advantages over the big ones. As for the armor, upon which so much stress is laid nowadays, the Camperdown's ram seems to have gone through the 16-18-inch iron of the Victoria as if it had been so much cardboard.

For a great many years we went too slow in naval matters, but it is not barely possible that just now we are going a little too fast? At any rate if American naval authorities do not have open eyes, ears and minds to all that the loss of the Victoria has to teach them, we shall certainly have,
sooner or later, an equally terrible naval object lesson of our own.

THE Pennsylvania Legislature at its last session passed a bill reducing the penalties for violation of the absurd blue law forbidding the sale of Sunday newspapers.
It ought to have been repealed altogether,
but the friends of religious liberty did not feel strong enough to undertake this. To everybody's surprise, however, even the milder concession to intelligence offered by the bill did not meet the views of Gov.
Pattison, who vetoed it on the ground that Sunday laws were wise and salutary.
Gov. Pattison earned some reputation in the past as a Democrat, a man of progressive intelligence and popular instincts, but he seems to have lost his savor since he became a candidate for the Presidency.

MANY generous donations have been made to the Plaza Summer Home for poor families, but the list of donors is headed today by the Diamond Tobacco Co., whose check for $500 is acknowledged elsewhere.
This magnificent contribution is worthy of the prosperous firm to whose broad-gauge enterprise and energy is due in large measure the leadership of St. Louis in tobacco manufacture and trade. Their generosity could not be better placed.
That check will bring health and happiness to a host of suffering mothers and children. The outlay will bring a rich return of blessings.

ON JULY 3.

The Plaza Summer Camp will be opened for the tenement children and their mothers on July 3. The St. Louis harbor boat has been kindly placed at the disposal of the charity and will leave the wharf at the foot of Washington avenue every Monday morning at 8 o'clock sharp, taking as many as can be accommodated and bringing back on the same day those who are ready to come. On the ground everything is in readiness. Eight physicians have volunteered their services, who will serve by turns at the camp and look after the health of the little ones. Trained nurses will aid them, so that should any of the little ones fall ill they will have not only the benefit of fresh air and wholesome food, but the very best care the medical profession affords. The camp will be kept full to its limits and every effort will be made to provide for as many of the needy
as possible.

An organization of ladies will look after the recipients of the charity from the time they leave their city homes until they arrive at Plaza. In cases of necessity the preparations for the transfer of the mothers and children will be made by these ladies themselves so that those who need help before they can start will not be neglected.

Physicians are requested to report any cases coming under their observation, which they deem worthy, either to the Post-Dispatch or to the Captain of the Police district in which the needy family resides. It is desired to make this relief work as complete as possible, and the cooperation of all classes and professions will be gratefully received.

THE MCKIBBIN MYSTERY.

The McKibbin poisoning mystery gives promise of developing into as celebrated a case as that of the Borden murder mystery. In this case the crime must be established, which was not necessary in the Fall River mystery, but as far as the preliminary investigation has gone it suggests the Borden murder in the fact that the crime, if there is crime, is of a peculiarly shocking nature in that it involved a double assassination, one of which is parried, and suspicious circumstances indicate the guilt of a young woman. The crime of which Maud McKibbin is suspected, while not so brutal in method, is more revolting than that of which Lizzie Borden was accused, because it contemplated both paricide and fratricide of a cold-blooded and wholesale kind.

The most striking similarity of the two cases, however, lies in the character of the evidence against the suspects as far as the inquiry has reached in the McKibbin mystery. In both cases the accusation rests upon suspicious circumstances, not upon actual evidence. This similarity should warn the law officers to be extremely careful to avoid the mistake made in the Borden case. It is a common mistake. Whenever a mysterious crime is discovered the disposition is to seize the first suspicious circumstance that comes to light and construct a theory from it. With suspicious ones aroused and a theory started, other circumstances which ordinarily would not be regarded assume importance and are made to fit and strengthen the theory.
Thus moral conviction often grows out of a web of circumstances, suspicious and otherwise, which are not worth so many pulls of smoke as evidence of crime in a court of law. They only serve to mislead detectives and blind them to facts pointing to different conclusions.

In the McKibbin mystery there is as yet no certainty that a crime has been committed. Not one iota of actual proof that Maud McKibbin intentionally poisoned her father and sisters has been adduced from the evidence so far brought out. No adequate motive has been discovered. There is no proof apparently of animosity against any one of the dead as was urged in Lizzie Borden's case. There are as yet only indications of the girl's bad character, evidence of her dishonesty and strongly suspicious circumstances upon which to base a charge. If Paris green was recklessly used in the McKibbin kitchen as claimed by Maud the poisoning may be due to accident and the charge that Maud attempted to buy poison the day before the fatal meal was eaten implicitly exploded.

Stronger proof than has yet been brought to light will be necessary to convict a 17-year-old girl of such a terrible crime as that of which Maud McKibbin is held on suspicion of to warrant holding her for trial. This proof may be found, but until it is she is entitled to a full presumption of innocence. All clues should be carefully followed and all circumstances carefully weighed. The investigation should be directed to discovering the truth, not to supporting a theory or fixing the guilt on a suspected person.

ALTHOUGH Leland Stanford is dead the corporation of which he was the master spirit still survive and have just as much power as ever to extract unearned profits from a deluded and helpless people. In these days the power acquired by such men is lodged with corporations, which seldom die and never forfeit their charters. By means of this simple and popular device the unearned increment is secured to the monopolists' successors to the end of time,
or until the people in the distant future shall wake up to the fact that watered stock and other forms of over-capitalization are only convenient, safe and thoroughly honorable ways of committing robbery. When this happens the death of a rich man will mean more than it does now.

MEN OF MARK.

THE Lord Mayor of London is expected to visit the Fair at Chicago during the summer.
ROYBET, the winner of the medal of honor at this year's Salon, is described as an extremely fine-looking man with attenuated features, a spare, but vigorous form, dark, serious eyes and dark hair and beard.

REV. IRA CHASE, Indiana's ex-prosecutor, was by turns school teacher, clergyman, legislator, Lieutenant-Governor, Governor and bank organizer under Zim-

the charge of swindling.

SPEAKING of racing American ponies to death, Lieut. Otto E. Ehlers, the German explorer now in this country, made an Asiatic journey of 7,000 miles on a Himalayan pony.
Lieut. Ehlers climbed Kilimanjaro and explored the interior of the continent, and ac-

All the principal actors in the Panama

the Melan Prison and ex-Minister Bihui is in the hospital of the Prison of Etampes.

SIR ARTHUR SULLIVAN is credited with a very pretty compliment. At Monte Carlo he came across Mr. and Mrs. Julian Storer, the lady being the renowned singer, Miss her baby in its carriage, was nearly run down on a crossing by what appeared to be an express wagon.

REX ROSS, who made the first American

Philadelphia. At the time Rexy made the flag, in 1776, by the direction of a committee

Impaching the People.

From the New York World.
Ex-Senator Edmunds joins the Bourbon of his party in holding that the American people are fools by more than 1,000,000 majority.

He attributes the disturbed financial condition of the country to popular distrust of the Democratic party, that is to say, to the people's distrust of themselves.

Inasmuch as the financial disturbance began under the Harrison Administration, during which the country made a net loss of $12,000,000 in gold by export, saw a surplus of $12,000,000 converted into a deficiency, and encountered the menace of a silver law which depleted the Treasury of its gold, the Senator's apportionment of blame reminds one of the wolf's crying of the fault
for the roiled brook, in the old fable.

Let the Senator suggest that the people of the intelligence of the people is insulting and absurd.

Two years in succession the people voted,
by large majorities, for economy in expenditures, reduced taxation and other reforms upon which they had determined.
Are not the people capable of knowing what they want? Are they likely to be alarmed at themselves? Did the reforms demanded for their relief ever create a "financial disturbance" except with monopolists and other robbers?

The Republican Bourbons, who liken the people to a flock of silly sheep, are preparing their party for another flattening at the polls.

Pattison's Presidential Aspirations.

From the Pittsburgh Leader.
Mr. Pattison is said to have Presidential aspirations. If so the sooner he gets rid of them the better. He is politically dead, and enjoying the last lease of power that he will ever enjoy in or out of the State of Pennsylvania, for it is a foregone conclusion that the subversion of the Executive power to the uses of rank bigotry will never be indorsed by the great mass of liberal-minded citizens in this free and enlightened country.

On the Paduch Newa, a small island in the Adriatic, the little daughter of Mr. Calissi recovered, she owes her life to an Italian spring chicken. When she was stricken with brain fever, and the doctors giving up in hope of her recovery, this morning she took the first word and ate the first morsel of food. The doctor, who was called by Calissi, an Italian, visited the sick child and marked, had he known her condition a day earlier, he would have been called. However, he was willing to try. He took a spring chicken, which he caught in a number of spring chickens, and made a live chicken, he split open its back and took out the entrails, and placed the inside of the chicken, entrails, blood and bones, in a bowl of water. The doctor began to get cold he took the chicken and placed it on the child's head, mother and place it on the same manner. The child, who was lying on her back, opened her eyes, and she was able to sit up. The child spoke, and afterwards asked for a drink of water. So far twenty-two spring chickens have been used. The doctor pressed the child was doing splendidly. The doctor took the chicken and placed it on the child's head and the child's head was on the child's head. The writer cannot tell, but should the child be able to walk, she would be a great credit. He says he saved his son's life in this way. It was necessary to use a forty-eight spring chicken. He paid the doctor, when he can get them in his treat-

The Duke Himself Managed to Slip Out Before the Crash Came—Leicester Honoring the Woman Who for a Long Time Kept Queen Victoria Away From the Opera.

Lady Anglesy, sister-in-law of the late Marquess of Anglesy, is a lady of American birth, who lives almost entirely in Paris, and who is the daughter of Mr. J. P. Kling of New York City. She is a beautiful woman, and her husband, who has furnished with which the long list of scandals with which the house of Anglesy has had its name associated, is a man of a very dissipated character. At present Lady Anglesy he became the cause of the suicide at Paris of another American lady, a Mrs. Wetmore of New York. Mrs. Wetmore had compromised her name and reputation for the sake of the Marquis, who had solemnly promised to marry her as soon as she had procured a divorce from her husband. Just as she was set free she learned that Lord Anglesy was about to marry another woman, the lady now his wife. According to the story, she was so shocked by this that she divorced wife of a younger brother of the late Duke of Newcastle, at whose Parisian residence she had been introduced by the Marquis, had an interview with the unfortunate lady a week before his marriage, during which he appeared as affectionate as a lover, and she was so completely won over by him that she agreed to leave her husband. The next day, however, she received a note through the Marquis' secretary which had been written the day before the marriage, in which the Marquis informed her that he was about to marry another woman, and gave her to understand that all was at an end between them. A few days after the celebration of the Marquis' marriage, she was visited by her lawyers, brought a suit for breach of promise against the delinquent peer, which resulted in the plaintiff being non-suited. The Marquis, however, was not content with this. If offense there had been, had been committed in France, the case could not be tried in England, and he was now pursuing a breach of promise in France. Was there that Mrs. Wetmore, heart-broken and penniless, having exhausted all her resources in England, and having no friends in France, committed suicide at the house of Lady Albert Pelham-Clinton. Lord Anglesy lived with his present wife only about a year, and then died. He was very anxious to announce at the time that he would not be held responsible for her debts, but he had no legal power to do so, and he was forced proportionately to his own penum.

probables seem crowding thick and fast on poor old Ferdinand de Lesseps, the latest misfortune being the bankruptcy of his son-in-law, Count Contat. Count Contat, a millionaire, who married Mlle. Fernande de Lesseps. The circumstances under which the young Count has come to grief are rather extraordinary. He has been noted for his extravagance, and married his very charming wife at a moment when it was believed that he was about to marry a girl of great wealth, and that her father would be able to make the fortune of his son-in-law, as he had made that of many others. These hopes were dashed when the girl was found to be a poor creature, and since then the young Count Contat has been driven to adopt all kinds of expedients to get out of his difficulties. Some time ago he found himself in urgent need of a couple of thousand francs, and appeared for assistance to a well-known loan broker, who, however, was not disposed to oblige him. He then turned to a notary, who made a very explicit and severe on the subject of usury, and accordingly it became necessary for him to seek assistance from a regularly regular commercial transaction. He then turned to a lawyer, who, in this object in view the Count was induced to associate himself with a firm bearing the name of Yvon, Vautier & Co. The Count was interested in the working of a patented invention destined to divert the smoke from the chimneys of houses into the public sewers—an obviously impossible thing to do. Accordingly, the Count indorsed notes bearing their name to the extent of 150,000 francs, and gave to the firm a sum of 500,000 francs of the capital invested in the firm. In return he received a sum of 3,000 francs, and was enabled to pay the expenses in exploiting and abroad, which, of course, he never had any intention of doing. He then turned to the bank, and obtained notes in order to pay the expenses. He was convinced that either the Contat family or else the De Lessepses would be able to redeem the notes in order to pay the expenses. He named them. In this they were mistaken; the notes were allowed to go to protest, he was then obliged to pay them, and the bank prosecutor in a lawsuit brought against M. Vautier, Gentil & Co. for usury.

The Countess of Stamford, who has just been received with public rejoicing by the good people of the ancient town of Leicester, the Mayor presenting her with an address of welcome, is no other than the once famous actress, Mrs. F. C. Stanger, who has the distinction of being the pet aversion of Queen Victoria. Indeed, she actually succeeded in keeping the Queen away from the theatre during an entire season. Of her history prior to her marriage to the Countess of Stamford, she remained the rage of London clubs, and even after she had become a peeress of the realm, and her home, both in town and country, was the rendezvous of the most eligible of male guests. For several years after her marriage she rented a house in the Strand, and her name was on the street agent for seats at the theatre. A characteristic pinch she insisted on retaining, the lodge adjoining the Strand, and for some time Queen Victoria did not attend. It was not until Stanger's box was changed over to the theatre that she was annoyed over opera night. This and the well-known blunder. This, and the

Her majesty thereupon decided to leave her to her own way during the remainder of that season.

One of the most notorious incidents of the Empire Eugénie's recent stay at Paris or her way home to England from the Riviera was her visit to the Duchess de Mouchy, at the Château de Châleu, within an hour's distance from the metropolis. The Duchess was born and brought up on the side of the Atlantic, away in the States of Virginia, and she had never shared the entire responsibility of the marriage to the Duc de Mouchy, the head of the junior branch of the grand old Orsini family. Opposed by the Duke, who himself, all sorts of scandalous stories were told, had been a victim of a fatal accident in expression of sincere pity for the unfortunate Anna Murat. Lady Louise Meaux has become once more a subject of shame to the entire British colony. She is the daughter of a French noble, as well as to the French authorities, and of ridicule to the Gallic press. In one word, she is disporting herself once more in the Parisian streets. Her father, the proprietor of the Hotel Bristol at Paris, requested her departure in consequence of the crowd that gathered in the streets below her window, and the scandalous and indecent literary vagaries. Since then she has possessed a house of her own in Paris, no inn-keeper's house, and she has been the cause of a riot. It is situated in a quiet street just off the Champs Elysees and she has been the cause of a riot.

The Marquis d'Allesbury was well matched and worthy of being related to the late lady Louise having achieved a notoriety on both sides of the Atlantic, most as unenviable as that of the costumed Marquis.

On one occasion, when she had been indiscreet enough to invite to supper the Hercules or strong man of a dime show, whom she had invited to give the great feat at Neully, she was found the next morning in the lavatory, bound and gagged, covered with marks of blows from head to foot, and with every bit of jewelry, lace and object of value in her room missing. On another occasion, when her entire casket of jewels were stolen from one of the principal London hotels by a Frenchman, whom she had made during a trip from Paris, and whom she had invited

The younger Lady Mox, daughter-in-law of Lady Louisa, is almost as eccentric, and has given rise to almost as much gossip as that of the Dowager. Winceless, however, that of the latter is characterized by vice, and the former by the absence of the most execrating vulgarity. The almost appalling manner and speech of the Junior Lady Mox are attributed to the obscurity of aristocracy and the insignificance of distinction. Like the present Marchioness of Newcastle, she is said to have been formerly a courtesan, and to have secured the stage of one of the minor London theaters as a lady of the corps. Her husband, it is said, has assumed the duties of her profession that she first attracted the attention of the extremely vulgar and dissipated Duke of Devonshire, who, fourteen years ago, became her husband.

Victoria's Lamprey Pie.
From the London Telegraph.

A Gloucester correspondent telegraphs: An attempt is being made by sending annually a lamprey pie to the Sovereign, which has been in abeyance since 1816, with this exception, that the late Queen Victoria consented to accept the gift, which will be displayed at the wedding. Gloucester is famous for lampreys, and in old times royal proclamations were occasionally issued forbidding the sale of them.

It was the custom of the corporation of Gloucester to present the Sovereign at marriage with a glutinous pie, called a lamprey pie, which was sometimes a costly gift, lampreys at that season being scarcely procurable at a guinea. Gloucester is noted for this fish and Gloucester for its peculiar mode of cooking them. It is said that the late Queen Victoria's lamprey pie cost Henry I. his life.

DAY RACING BEGUN.

Opening of the South Side Park Summer Meeting.

THE CONTESTS BY ELECTRIC LIGHT CONTINUED AT NIGHT.

Results of Yesterday's Racing at the East St. Louis Track—Alonso Furphy was a Surprise at the Head of the Pack.

The opening day at South Side was a grand success. The weather was clear, but the track was slow from the rain Friday night. The pleasant weather brought out about 2,500 persons to witness the five races of the day. The horses were well cared for and had all they could do to contend to the bottom. In addition to the five well-filled races, there was a book on the Kansas City races with six races on the program.

One favorite, one second choice and a heavily-backed third choice with two rank outsiders won.

Alonso, favorite at 1 to 1, ran second, two lengths behind Loh. He was a 10 to 1 shot, for the opening. Loh, favorite at 5 to 2, won.

Topsey Tarry, another 10 to 1 shot, was successful handily by nearly three lengths from Joe Loh in the second race.

Furphy, first choice at 2 to 1, defeated Loh by a short head for the owners' handicap.

Alonso, at 7 to 2, captured the succeeding race easily by a length from Loh. Loh, favorite at 5 to 2, won.

SAVED BY A BEAR.

PILOT WYLLIE'S EXPERIENCE IN A COUNTRY FULL OF BEARS.

Written for the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH.

The starting narrative is a "grammatication" from the original manuscript of Capt. Wylie, who was largely instrumental in the launching into literature of Sam Clemens, who is now Mark Twain. Capt. Wylie has retained all of his old Mississippi steamboat story-telling facilities, and for veracity is acknowledged to be the peer of all. He is the corner of many words in the English vocabulary, and he occasionally the translator from stress of admiration of the old pilot's linguistic lapses into a temporary attack of phonetic spelling. He is due entirely to the beneficent influence of originality which is sometimes irresistible.

The manuscript relates a tale which he entitles "SAVED BY A WILD BEAR."

A YOUNG MIMROD WHO WAS SAVED FROM BEING TORN TO PIECES OR EATEN BY WILD HOGS.

In the year 1881 I started from Cincinnati on a flatboat, which was loaded with produce of various kinds, was bound for the river. It was in the fall of the year. We had a rough time for three or four weeks, but finally landed at Helena, Ark., and then crossed over to the Mississippi side and put our boat into a pass or buyout that ran into the head of the Yazoo River, at the mouth of the Yellow River. Two rivers flow into the Yazoo River. We bushwhacked our boat on the Yellow River ten miles.

By bushwhacking boatsmen mean pulling your boat along by use of wild game. We were very high. We pulled up into a small stream and the widest-looking place I ever saw. It was twelve miles to a house, and in the same swamp that Menzi, the great highwayman, was captured a few days before we got there.

It was the most desolate swamp I ever saw. It was a great place to hunt every kind of game: bear, deer, wild hogs, wild cats, turkeys, and most anything you wanted. There was a drive road where they hauled cotton to the landing, but it was not in use except in the winter. The most desolate swamp I ever saw.

My first and last experience with discomfit Mark Twain's Rutting it in the mountains. My first day and night lost in a cabin break-up. I was the most desolate swamp I ever saw.

I saw turkey signs at the edge of the canoe. I was in a lake and large cane brakes. I was over the ground was high the cane grew and the water was high. I was in a lake and large cane brakes. I was over the ground was high the cane grew and the water was high.

Palatial Headquarters of the Rival Political Parties.
THE CAUTION NOTED FOR BLUE BLOOD, THE REFORM FOR BRAINS.

White's and his Betting Book Were Famous for Years—The Athenaeum, Green Room and Garrick—They All Go in for Comfort as the First Thing to Be attained.

Special Correspondence SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH.
LONDON, June 15.—Beaumont and Fletcher, Johnson, Shakespeare, Goldsmith, Dr. Johnson and Boswell, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Addison, Burke, Steele, Walpole and scores more famous men of letters and art, in their time resorted to little, dingy old public houses for coffee, ale, gaming and exchange of a sort of intellectual savagery, the friction of which undoubtedly provided a virtue and useful aspiration; and the history of these ancient coffee-houses, the fore-runners of the great London clubs of to-day, comprises almost the social history of English art and literature.

While there are at the present time more than one hundred wealthy and noted London clubs, there are really no resorts answering the same purpose as "The Athenaeum," "The Carlton," "The Reform," "The White" and "The Carlton." The "Athenaeum" is the period of Anne. The "joyous neighborhood of Covent Garden," as Thackeray remembered it and imitatively described it, is only a joyous neighborhood of mellow memories; and the old-time, genial clubland about St. James's Palace is transformed into a somber neighborhood which, like the newer clublands of Piccadilly and Pall Mall, is oppressive in its splendor and stateliness.

Of the very old clubs of London still existing, the "Athenaeum," "Brook" and "Reform," all located in St. James's street, White's is by far the most noteworthy and aristocratic. It is older than the Bank of England. It really is the first of the great English clubs as they are known to-day. But it was never the resort of literary men and writers. It is purely a social club and its members were noblemen and those leaders of aristocratic government, including all of England's prime ministers from Walpole to Peel and their powerful colleagues, who lapped national measures and controlled national acquisitions. Steele clearly defined its earliest status as well as that of the noted "Will's" and "Greens" when he wrote in the Tatler that "all accounts of salubrity, pleasure and entertainment shall be omitted in the White's Chocolate House," while "Will's" was to furnish the poetry and the Grecian the learning.

White's is still undoubtedly the most exclusive and aristocratic club in the world. Its windows look out upon the Corinthian facade of the almost as aristocratic and architecturally more stately Conservative Club, opposite on St. James's street. Its dinners are the most ceremonious known. All of the old-time English fashion is here carefully preserved. And undoubtedly more blue-blooded Englishmen have ogled fair ladies from its famous bow window than from any other single place in Britain. Perhaps it has not been the scene of the most dangerous gaming in England, but there is no other purely social resort in all the world where betting has been so constant and so much provoked on so slight pretext. Its betting— which could be said for thousands of pounds—has been the noble and famous signature of the club. It has been the principal source of the registered bets of the most whimsical character, comprising every conceivable difference of judgment in affairs of marriage, intrigue and "Pique." A few literal translations from their days:

"Lord Lincoln bets L.A. Winchester One Hundred Guineas to fifty guineas, that the Duchess Dowager of Marlborough does not survive the Duchess Dowager of Cleveland. Oct. 10, 1784."

"Lord Montfort bet Mr. F. W. Angar 100 guineas that Lady Juxon has a child born alive before Lady Burleigh. June 8, 1790."

"Mr. Balfour bet 100 guineas to 50 guineas that Bonaparte will live six months after the commencement of hostilities between England and France. May 14, 1803."

"Mr. Talbot bet 100 guineas to 50 guineas that we are at war with America this day six months. August 1, 1812."

"Lord Falkmouth bet the Duke of Richmond 10 guineas that an Enquire is qualified to kill game. Feb. 10, 1825."

"Lord Glasgow bet Lord Bentinck 100 that if Robert Peel continues first minister of the crown until three years hence. January 27, 1825."

"Lord Stanley bet Lord Bath 250 to 125 that Mr. D'Israeli will be premier of the Exchequer from this day until March 15, 1832."

"Lord Bath bet Lord de Lisle 25 that a horse will take his name in the Great St. James's five years from this date, June 15, 1835."

The political history of London clubs is inseparable with and between the Carlton and Reform clubs, the palatial headquarters and homes of the two great political parties of England. They are both located in Pall Mall, the windows of the Reform looking into those of the other; and entirely aside from the irreconcilable disparity of their political teachings and efforts, they are equally as famous for their rivalry at White's. In terms of the extravagance of modern club life.

The Duke of Wellington was founder of the Carlton. A little less than fifty years ago, it gradually became the headquarters of the aristocracy. Then those great corporate institutions of Britain, the aristocracy and the middle class, whose interests are identical with those of the hereditary aristocracy came to have representation in it. It is a notorious fact that more money has always been lavishly available through the Carlton Club for political purposes than through any other single party in Europe. Whether by "hook" or "out" power is the actual fighting headquarters of the entire Conservative or Tory party of Britain. The dignity and grandeur of the Carlton are splendid. The exterior of the building most imposing. Massiveness, strength, simplicity and splendor speak from the granite walls and flashing columns. The interior is grand, grave, stately and impressive. "Black-rited" the structure, appointments remain the very manner, air, dress and language of the habitués speak of a character that has been a place. Then an on-looker is to know strength that has been a place. Then an on-looker is to know strength that has been a place. Then an on-looker is to know strength that has been a place.

The Reform Club is about sixty years old. Its origin was through the influence of Cobden and Bright, and it was a direct national response to a pressing need for a reform headquarters during the intense interest awakened by the famous bill of 1832. Its members were more London and provincial elites and political writers than perhaps any other club in London. But it is its membership. Carlo Bianchi was given for the construction of its building, which is the side of the entrance to Carlton House Terrace, the Carlton standing on the opposite corner, and for its interior decoration and appointments. No other London club possesses so diversified a membership in station, vocation and views; but it is representative of the concentration of all opposition to Toryism, though it comprises at times almost countless factional elements, its wealth, strength and permanency has been remarkable.

The building is in the pure Italian style, massive, rich and simple. The central hall, open from floor to dome and surrounded by massively colonnaded galleries, is one of the richest and most stately interiors in England. A splendid staircase leads to the upper gallery, which opens to the principal apartments of the club. The coffee-room occupies the beautiful garden front on Carlton House terrace; and the drawing-room, which is the center of the club, is a masterpiece of the architect. The Reform Club is just above. One of the galleries of the central hall is filled with full length portraits of the heroes of reform, and the other portions of the building are devoted to the fine arts; while the stately, the richest and most frequent in any London club, immortalizes the great leaders like Cobden, Bright, Palmerston, Russell and Gladstone. There is only one just appellate to use when speaking of every feature of this great club: That is, magnificent. Both the Carlton and the Reform are famous for their cuisine and chefs, and the Reform is said to have the most famous public wine cellar in Europe.

With the extraordinary prestige, wealth and influence of both these clubs, a limited membership—for instance, the Carlton is limited to 1,600 members and the Reform to 1,400—"overgrown clubs" were a natural sequence. With the Carlton, which contains the bluest blood in England, death vacancies are the only means of securing entrance. Members of the Reform are elected by ballot, and the Reform is said to have a more great leader of the Tories dies, when his heir is usually elected to fill the vacancy. The Junior Carlton was consequently established as a "chapel of ease" for the Carlton, and the National Liberal, with the same relation to the Reform. The former has a membership of 1,100, and the latter, with its splendid establishment overlooking the Thames, has accommodations for 1,600 members. There is also, with Conservative or Tory affiliations, the Conservative, City Carlton, National City Conservative, St. Stephen's, Beaconsfield and the City Conservative, among those taking the Reform as their leader and model and possessing various phases of Liberal sympathies, are Brook's, National Liberal, Cobden, City Liberal and the Devonshire.

The Athenaeum Club is the chief literary club, if not the resort, of London. Its huge, time-worn walls and stately portico have a somber look in the splendid Pall Mall region, where it stands at the park entrance of Waterloo place, just opposite the far sunnier looking home of the United Service Club. It occupies part of the courtyard of old Carlton House. The architecture is of the Grecian order, and of severe Grecian order at that. The frieze is copied from the Parthenon. Over the Doric portico is a colossal figure of Minerva. The only cheerful things in the whole place are two huge fireplaces in the main hall or exchange. Over these are the "Diana Reclining" and "Venus Victorious" in marble. The entire atmosphere of the place suggests marble and ice. It is a resort for venerable professors, philosophers, seismologists, antiquarians and authors out of whom the life of letters is already well filled. The club has the finest library of any club in the metropolis, and a story which Hutton tells illustrates its value to habitues. A member, illustrating reference to the Fathers on some theological point inquired of a club official if "Justin Martyr" was in the library. "I don't think he is a member, sir," the latter politely replied, "but I will at once refer to the list, sir."

There is a large number of thoroughly enjoyable clubs in London, some of them really famous, which have brought society together strictly professional people, or men of means who are liberal patrons of the arts. In the main their frequenters are persons who have really accomplished something; men who as authors, journalists, actors, artists, singers, and even in law and physics, are progressive, ambitious, independent; in fact, the genuinely cultivated gentlemen of London. These clubs do not always possess palatial establishments; entrance fees and annual subscriptions are not equal to ordinary incomes; and their exclusiveness does not comprise questions of blood, title, political opinion or wealth. In these, I believe, exist in a greater degree those true and laudable principles which are the life and preservation of genuine club association than in all other great clubs of London combined.

I refer to such clubs as the Garrick, Green Room, a sort of amateur club, Lyric and Beethoven. The latter unique club, which has its home over Toole's Theatre, sprang out of the Honorable Society of Beethovens, in the old Beethoven room of the Lyric Theatre, which still exists, and is used by Irving for his exquisite private dinner parties. The Beethoven over Toole's is distinctive in being a "one-room" club, and admitting no guests.

The Arundel has 350 to 400 members. It was once exclusively literary and artistic. Amateurs and artists are now admitted, and while its prominence is a bar to special indulgence, it serves as a sort of necessary training school to higher club life, while affording many a deserving fellow a foothold and beginning at professional recognition which would be difficult in conservative London to otherwise secure.

The Lyric has a magnificent club-house in Piccadilly, and with its entire appointments, including a large theater and concert hall, is among the finest buildings in the city.

All England Astir to Celebrate the Royal Marriage.

The Greeting in Store for Prince George and His Bride.

LONDON'S STREETS TO BE FILLED WITH FLOWERS AND FLAGS.

Rulers of Europe Will Be Present on the Great Occasion—The Queen's Orders as to Costumes of the Bridesmaids—Fests Contribute to the Event—What Premier Gladstone Will Wear—The Presents on View—London Topics.

LONDON, June 24.—The great Victoria disaster has been a great disappointment to the royal wedding, still London is sitting up nights waiting to honor the betrothed ones. All the streets are given up to decoration, and the bride procession will drive beneath bowers and bunting, flags and flowers, and along great rows of maris and columns hung with emblems. The city preparing to outdo itself. Apart from national patriotic enthusiasm the people are spurred to this by the benefits that have already come to them from this approaching marriage. The retail trade everywhere has improved and the shops have never had such a good season. These decorations are simply the outward manifestation of thanks for increased business. The suggestion made by the Lord Mayor of London to the mayors of other towns that all money collected for presents should be turned into a common fund and given as a dowry to the bride does not meet with enthusiastic approval.

Sturdy little Wales has spoken plainly and said that he is glad to give Princess Mary a present, but not of money. And other sections are following the same lead. As a matter of fact money is far more desirable than these thousands of gifts of useless articles now pouring upon the Princess. The Princess is poor, very poor, and nothing could be so acceptable to her as some such gift. But the snobs and snobesses who have been touting for presents so that their names might be mentioned will have none of the money scheme. In order to appease these busy-bodies, who have gone about squeezing pennies out of reluctant victims, they have decided to come down to the garden party at the Royal Lodge, from 5 to 7 o'clock. They are to be placed in a long corridor behind bars and columns hung with flags and bunting, and the royal couple will make their way through the crowd. The only American who has been at all in evidence in this present-giving is the Duchess of Marlborough. The entire Churchill family clubbed together and presented the Duke of York with three massive silver jurelures, for fruit or flowers, and the Duke of Devonshire with a pair of silver vases. The Duke of Devonshire's gift is a pair of silver vases, the Duke of Devonshire's gift is a pair of silver vases, the Duke of Devonshire's gift is a pair of silver vases.

On Tuesday wedding presents, some four hundred of them, will be on to the inspection of the public at White Lodge, from 5 to 7 o'clock. their cattle and are hurrying them off to market rather than let them starve to death. However, the past two days have witnessed a general improvement in most parts of the country all over England.

The only good this long dry spell has done is to keep away cholera. Experts declare that dry weather is the greatest enemy of the disease, still cholera is steadily spreading, and a great number of cases are reported from the north of France, from the Gironde to the Pyrenees, from the Alps to the Mediterranean. The French authorities conceal the returns of daily, deny that the disease exists, and say that the disease is not so bad as it is said to be and the death average nearly 200 a day.

There is a quiet laughing here over the suggestion that the real blarney stone had gone to the Chicago Exhibition. Nobody believed the American people could be so easily deceived, and now the stone has been taken to the Chicago Exhibition, and the American people are being deceived.

HE'S ALL RIGHT.

Brilliant Debut of James Bannon, the Browns' New Player.

HIS HITTING ALMOST SAVES THE DAY FOR THE HOME TEAM.

He Could Not Win the Game by Himself, However, and So the Browns Lost—Hawley. Still Wild—The Record of Games Played Elsewhere—Base Ball Briefs.

The third game of the present St. Louis series was played in the presence of an unusually good Saturday crowd at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon and the visitors won with three runs to spare.

The Browns had matters going their own way until the sixth inning when Hawley's wildness, which enabled two of the visitors to get their bases on balls, combined with a wild throw of Capt. Quinn, resulted in two runs being scored. In the closing inning two safe hits, a double and a base on balls were responsible for Louisville making three more runs. Young James Bannon, the Browns' new outfielder, made his initial appearance in this city and carried off the honors of the game. His pair of three-baggers, both of which were "hummers," were responsible for the two runs scored by the Browns.

The Browns came mighty near registering in the second, when Glascock secured his base on balls and was advanced to second and third by strikes from Quinn. The game was unequal to the job of batting Jack In. In the third they came near scoring again, when Gunson hit safely past short, went to second on Hawley's sacrifice and was advanced to third by Crooks' fly to Stratton, but was thrown out at home.

An enjoyable outing under the auspices of Venus Chapter.
The excursion given under the auspices of Venus Chapter, No. 135, of the Order of Eastern Star, yesterday, was most successful in every respect. One of the largest crowds that ever went out from Carondelet filled the steamer Paul Tulane to her utmost capacity. It was representative in every sense of the word. It seemed that everybody who could possibly get away, and the result was an enthusiastic throng of people on pleasure bent.

SEVEN MEN HURT BY AN EXPLOSION.

MANHATTAN BEACH, Coney Island, June 24.—At 1:40 this afternoon an explosion occurred in the bathhouse which was the cause of the death of a man and the injury of seven others. The injured are: Joseph Purcell, 30 years old, married, of 48 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn; face partially blown off, arms and legs badly burned. He was taken to Flatbush Hospital and will probably die.
Jas. Egan, 71 years old; bruised about legs and body and injured head.
Henry Henderson, 22; badly burned about face and arms; sent to hospital.
Joseph Lawlor, 30 years old; badly burned about arms; sent to hospital.
Frank Beh, 22 years old; badly injured; sent home.
Sydney Hammo of Sheepshead Village; bruised about the body by flying missiles; sent home.
Purcell, Henderson and Lawlor were loading an iron bomb about a foot square with explosive paste or clay. Purcell stood over the bomb with a rammer, packing the explosive into the iron casing. Without warning it exploded, blowing him into the street nearly a rod away. Henderson and Lawlor, who were standing a few feet off the bomb, were knocked nearly the same distance. The others were standing about fifteen feet away, their backs turned to the bomb. They received their injuries by being struck by flying pieces. All were green hands at the business, and it is believed they were ignorant of the dangerous duties they were performing. The explosion sounded like a cannon and greatly frightened those who were on the beach. Dr. Paul of Sheepshead village, the doctor had attended the injured men. Just how the scene was not damaged and the performance will take place to-night as announced.

TWO KILLED IN A WRACK.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 24.—Two men were killed and sixteen wounded and injured in the wrecking of a Great Northern coal train thirty-five miles south of West Superior. Confirmation of the accident is given at the Great Northern offices in this city. The train was the cause of the wreck. The dead are: Engineer ROBERT INGERSOLL. FIREMAN WALTER REILLY was badly scalded and is not expected to live. CONDUCTOR HALL was badly bruised, but was able to give the alarm. The train consisted of twenty cars of coal and merchandise and twenty-six "empties." All were piled in a heap and are on fire.

A ROMANCE OF LAW.

The Story Book of an Order Issued by a New York Court.
New York, June 24.—Justice Traux of the Supreme Court has handed down a decision ordering that Frederick William Sowden be allowed to redeem the property at No. 223 East Twenty-fourth street, now held under foreclosure proceedings by Wm. Earle, and give Sowden six months within which to pay off the mortgage.

JOHN SOWDEN DIED AT RICKSVILLE, L. I., June 5, 1873, leaving a wife and three children.

John Sowden died at Ricksville, L. I., June 5, 1873, leaving a wife and three children. In his will he left his real estate to his son John Casper Ruttinger, and that before he came to this country in 1868 he had lived in London under his own name. A woman, whose maiden name was Charlotte Mitchell, had lived with him as his wife for twelve years before his death both in London and in this country. She passed as Mrs. John Casper Ruttinger, and served as his real estate, appointing as trustees Robert Ray and Thos. W. Little, Secretary of the Metropolitan Savings Bank. He willed that the income of the trust was to be paid during her life to Charlotte Sowden, the elder. At her death, or in case of her death, the interest was to revert to her two children. It was also provided that when the children attained their majority, the property was to be sold to his son John Casper Ruttinger, who was living in London when his wife was made and had three children, Mary, Charles and Cecil. Charlotte Mitchell Sowden became the wife of Wm. Henry Duryea on May 18, 1878. At the present time he is the Coroner and she is the Postmistress of Ricksville. Before his death, John Sowden mortgaged his property at No. 223 East Twenty-fourth street to Wm. F. Earle for $10,000, in two mortgages. The first mortgage for $5,000 bore date of July 1, 1871, and the second for $5,000 was dated Sept. 27, 1872. Earle began foreclosure proceedings in 1875, and served a summons on Mrs. Duryea and her trustees. He neglected, however, to serve a summons on Fred Wm. Sowden, in whom the property was vested from the time of his mother's marriage to Duryea. In the process of law Earle entered into possession of the property in December, 1875. A year ago Frederick William Sowden became of age and at once brought suit against Earle looking to the redemption of the property. In making his decision Justice Traux says that Earle must render an accounting to a referee as to the income of the trust since 1875. The value of the property is said to be about $10,000.

VOLZ GETS HIS CLOTHES.

Garments Held by the Police as Evidence in a Murder Case Surrendered.
Alexander Volz, who about six months ago gained much unpleasant notoriety in connection with the John Shannon murder case, visited the Four Courts last evening for the purpose of obtaining his clothing, which was seized by the police at the time his name appeared in connection with the case and examined for blood stains. His request was granted, and he left the building carrying with him the clothing to which at one time so much interest was attached.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Three Children Mangled to Death at a Railway Crossing.

A FOURTH VICTIM OF THE ACCIDENT DIED SHORTLY AFTER.

The Death of a Fifth Only a Question of a Short Time—The Blame for the Disaster Placed on the Engineer—Did Not Blow His Whistle Early Enough—Casualties.

NEW YORK, June 24.—The 3:15 p. m. train from Jersey City on the Newark branch of the Erie Railroad struck a carriage near Avondale station at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The carriage contained Mrs. Williams of Newark, her 12-year-old daughter, Mrs. Druehl of Belleville avenue, Newark, and her two children, a boy, aged about 3 years, and a girl, aged about 1 year. The three children were instantly killed. The little boy's head was almost cut in half and Mrs. Druehl was carried to the bank alongside the track and died within a few minutes. Mrs. Williams is unconscious and it is feared she is injured internally. Her death is only a question of minutes. The blame for the disaster is said to lie entirely with the engineer. Mrs. Williams is superintendent of the Metropolitan Insurance Co. of Newark. The engineer did not blow his whistle until the train was within fifty feet of the Washington avenue crossing, at least that was the statement made by all eye-witnesses. The carriage was struck almost in the center. The horses escaped injury. The bodies of the little children were frightfully mangled. The party in the carriage was going out for a drive in the country. Dr. Wrightson, the Coroner, has been summoned to the scene.

MUTILATED WITH A HATCHET WHILE LYING ASLEEP.

The Victim Not Yet Dead, but Cannot Recover—Public Meetings Held and Rewards Offered for Capture of the Fiend—No Clue to the Perpetrator—Crimes and Criminals.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 24.—The Kline murder at Brightwood, a suburb of Indianapolis, resembles the Borden mystery in some of its features. Kline was horribly mutilated with a hatchet about 10 o'clock Thursday morning while he slept, and his wife was out of the house perhaps fifteen minutes. Everybody calls it a murder, but the man, strange to say, still lives. Physicians say, however, that he cannot recover. During a brief convalescent spell to-day he said he did not know who tried to murder him; that it was done while he was asleep; that he all right when he awoke. The citizens of Brightwood are terribly excited over the affair. Several public meetings have been held and a reward offered for the murderer. A Mrs. Sullivan says that about noon on the day of the attempted murder a negro came to her kitchen door and asked for something to eat. There was blood on his hands and sleeves, and the sight of it so unnerved her that she gave up her vain attempt to cut a loaf into slices and broke it in two, giving the negro one of the pieces. She says that she had a frightened look about him, and that when he heard footsteps on the floor of the saloon, which occupies part of the building, he dropped the bread and ran. Mrs. McKee, a neighbor, saw a negro running through the woods toward the railroad an hour or two earlier in the morning.

THE GRAVES CASE.

COLORADO'S SUPREME COURT DECIDES THAT THE POISONER MUST BE TRIED.
DENVER, Colo., June 24.—The writ of habeas corpus prayed for by Dr. Thomas Thatcher Graves through his attorney has been refused by the Supreme Court. A decision was rendered this morning that the prisoner for trial at the fall term of the Criminal Court and he will remain in jail here until that time. The ground upon which the motion for his release by habeas corpus was made was that he had been kept in confinement during and beyond two terms of court since his first trial, his attorney contending that it was an illegal restraint. So it seems this will again open the case which closed over a year ago. The victim and sentence to death of Dr. Graves for poisoning his wife, Mrs. E. J. Graves, the wealthy widow of Providence, R. I., before the day set for the execution Dr. Graves' attorney obtained a writ of habeas corpus, but as the attendance of many of the witnesses for the prosecution cannot be secured, the authorities have not pushed the case, and seemed willing to see the prisoner go free.

VIOLATED THE LIQUOR LAW.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 24.—Jacob Weisman, who sold liquor near the Soldiers' Home, was sentenced to thirty days in jail and was fined $200 to-day by Judge Myers. Two months ago Weisman was enjoined by the Court. He is said to have boasted he would pay no attention to the order. When the case came up Weisman was at the World's Fair. Judge Myers ordered that the trial proceed as if he were present, and when Weisman comes home he will be met by an officer and arrested. His attorney has appealed to the Supreme Court.

ROBBED A POST-OFFICE.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 24.—James Green will serve three years in the Columbus (O.) penitentiary. His sentence was imposed by the United States District Court for robbing a post-office, but the real story is behind that. The post-office was kept in a little store in Columbus, Ga., and was robbed by Green and his partner, who were both arrested. The robbery was booked for next week. Being short of funds, he burglarized the store in order to get his wedding garments. It was lucky for him that he stole some stamps at the same time, as that got him only three years in the penitentiary, whereas a trial for burglary would have given him twenty.

ADJUDGED INSANE.

GALESBURG, Ill., June 24.—Milton Boyer, who shot his sister-in-law with a shot-gun at Yates City last Thursday, because she tried to make him sleep in the house instead of outdoors, was adjudged insane in the Circuit Court to-day. The evidence showed that during the past three months he had made repeated attempts on the lives of the family with poison and other means.

So it seems this will again open the case which closed over a year ago. The victim and sentence to death of Dr. Graves for poisoning his wife, Mrs. E. J. Graves, the wealthy widow of Providence, R. I., before the day set for the execution Dr. Graves' attorney obtained a writ of habeas corpus, but as the attendance of many of the witnesses for the prosecution cannot be secured, the authorities have not pushed the case, and seemed willing to see the prisoner go free.

VIOLATED THE LIQUOR LAW.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 24.—Jacob Weisman, who sold liquor near the Soldiers' Home, was sentenced to thirty days in jail and was fined $200 to-day by Judge Myers. Two months ago Weisman was enjoined by the Court. He is said to have boasted he would pay no attention to the order. When the case came up Weisman was at the World's Fair. Judge Myers ordered that the trial proceed as if he were present, and when Weisman comes home he will be met by an officer and arrested. His attorney has appealed to the Supreme Court.

ROBBED A POST-OFFICE.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 24.—James Green will serve three years in the Columbus (O.) penitentiary. His sentence was imposed by the United States District Court for robbing a post-office, but the real story is behind that. The post-office was kept in a little store in Columbus, Ga., and was robbed by Green and his partner, who were both arrested. The robbery was booked for next week. Being short of funds, he burglarized the store in order to get his wedding garments. It was lucky for him that he stole some stamps at the same time, as that got him only three years in the penitentiary, whereas a trial for burglary would have given him twenty.

ADJUDGED INSANE.

GALESBURG, Ill., June 24.—Milton Boyer, who shot his sister-in-law with a shot-gun at Yates City last Thursday, because she tried to make him sleep in the house instead of outdoors, was adjudged insane in the Circuit Court to-day. The evidence showed that during the past three months he had made repeated attempts on the lives of the family with poison and other means.

HORRIBLY HACKED.

Another Case Similar to the Borden Murder Mystery.

MUTILATED WITH A HATCHET WHILE LYING ASLEEP.

The Victim Not Yet Dead, but Cannot Recover—Public Meetings Held and Rewards Offered for Capture of the Fiend—No Clue to the Perpetrator—Crimes and Criminals.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 24.—The Kline murder at Brightwood, a suburb of Indianapolis, resembles the Borden mystery in some of its features. Kline was horribly mutilated with a hatchet about 10 o'clock Thursday morning while he slept, and his wife was out of the house perhaps fifteen minutes. Everybody calls it a murder, but the man, strange to say, still lives. Physicians say, however, that he cannot recover. During a brief convalescent spell to-day he said he did not know who tried to murder him; that it was done while he was asleep; that he all right when he awoke. The citizens of Brightwood are terribly excited over the affair. Several public meetings have been held and a reward offered for the murderer. A Mrs. Sullivan says that about noon on the day of the attempted murder a negro came to her kitchen door and asked for something to eat. There was blood on his hands and sleeves, and the sight of it so unnerved her that she gave up her vain attempt to cut a loaf into slices and broke it in two, giving the negro one of the pieces. She says that she had a frightened look about him, and that when he heard footsteps on the floor of the saloon, which occupies part of the building, he dropped the bread and ran. Mrs. McKee, a neighbor, saw a negro running through the woods toward the railroad an hour or two earlier in the morning.

THE GRAVES CASE.

COLORADO'S SUPREME COURT DECIDES THAT THE POISONER MUST BE TRIED.
DENVER, Colo., June 24.—The writ of habeas corpus prayed for by Dr. Thomas Thatcher Graves through his attorney has been refused by the Supreme Court. A decision was rendered this morning that the prisoner for trial at the fall term of the Criminal Court and he will remain in jail here until that time. The ground upon which the motion for his release by habeas corpus was made was that he had been kept in confinement during and beyond two terms of court since his first trial, his attorney contending that it was an illegal restraint. So it seems this will again open the case which closed over a year ago. The victim and sentence to death of Dr. Graves for poisoning his wife, Mrs. E. J. Graves, the wealthy widow of Providence, R. I., before the day set for the execution Dr. Graves' attorney obtained a writ of habeas corpus, but as the attendance of many of the witnesses for the prosecution cannot be secured, the authorities have not pushed the case, and seemed willing to see the prisoner go free.

CATTLE RAISERS' WAR.

Rivals for the Possession of Garlands Come to Blows.
DENVER, Colo., June 24.—For several months trouble has been brewing between the cattlemen on the Platte Valley, near Debeque, and Mormon sheepmen, who have driven their flocks from Utah, and hostilities have been narrowly averted. Several weeks ago a number of sheep were killed, and now come reports that night another raid was made by the cattlemen upon the Mormons' herd of sheep now being held in Bull Basin, in which several hundred head of sheep were killed by bombs. A few days ago the Mormon sheep owners pretended to be making preparation for driving out and in consequence the cattlemen suspended hostilities. Instead of driving out, however, the sheepmen began making preparations for a permanent occupation of the land and no time in strengthening their defenses. This, with the report which seems to be generally accepted as true, that an other immense herd, consisting of some 20,000 sheep, is now on the way from Utah, and within a few days' drive of the valley, were no doubt the cause of last night's raid. The situation is very much strained and a fight between the cattlemen and sheepmen is probable.

Nominated Carrill D. Wood.
LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 24.—After three days hard work the Democratic State Judicial Convention concluded its labors this afternoon and adjourned. Sixty-one ballots were taken before a nomination was made. Carrill D. Wood, a driver employed by the Pacific Express Co., Hoffman was subsequently arrested by Detective Alexander, and when searched at the station a silver watch was found in his possession, which had been charged that there is a ring that has been pawned for days and it is supposed was out of money and took the articles to sell and obtain money for drink.

ENJOINED WHILE DRUNK.
NEW YORK, June 24.—A big deal in railroad circles was consummated yesterday, the Texas Central purchasing from local parties fifteen acres of land on the banks of the Brazos for $50,000. The company will shortly begin the erection of freight depots, side tracks, round-house and other improvements. This deal assures the extension of this road from Ross, Tex., to Waco, which will be made at no distant date.

WELL FROM A PORCH.
CHARLES SCHMIDT, 4 years old, living with his parents at 1250 North Eighth street, fell off a porch at his home about 5:30 o'clock last night. He was about 15 feet high, and was falling from the porch. He was bruised about the head and body.

STOLEN FROM AN EXPRESS COMPANY.
ADOLPH UNGER, an ex-convict, was arrested yesterday by Officer M. O'Brien while trying to dispose of three boxes of cigars which he is suspected of having stolen. He claimed to have obtained them from Henry Hoffman, a driver employed by the Pacific Express Co. Hoffman was subsequently arrested by Detective Alexander, and when searched at the station a silver watch was found in his possession, which had been charged that there is a ring that has been pawned for days and it is supposed was out of money and took the articles to sell and obtain money for drink.

HOTEL ST. LOUIS, LAKE MINNETONKA, June 24.—Poets and travelers are wont to dwell upon the surpassing beauty of tropical nights. In this latter end of the nineteenth century, while the regard for beauty is none the less than in former days, the sentimentality of the times asserts itself after the apothem of old Horace and mingles the useful with its consideration of the pleasant. In the practical work-a-day world things are viewed from many sides, and while a tropical night might be one thing to a poet, to the artist it would be quite another from a sanitary standpoint. The artistic soul may feel the incongruity of this point of consideration, but there is nothing more to the point when there is question of combining in our pleasure a season of healthful recreation.

To the denizens of the cities who in hot mid-summer days look to the nights—in fact in vain—for relief from the scorching siege of sunlight, tropical nights over which the poets rave have no allurements. What the people of the city want are the nights of the North, where darkness brings refreshing coolness, that produces a delicious quickening both of soul and sense.

These are the Minnesota nights—nights more lovely than any that ever inspired the warm imagination of the poets of the South. Here at Minnetonka the Northern nights are loveliest—not the nights of the frozen North where darkness clothes the earth and air with a cold crystalline brilliancy, but nights of the North where the June sunshine shows warm kisses during the day and sky with her barbaric vigor creeps slowly to rest, rioting in a wealth of splendid color over the land of many-tinted waters before crossing the horizon bar. There is nothing like it in the South, where the night follows fast on the sudden sunset and all the air and sky swoons with the heated exhalations of the parched earth. Not so here, where the sun goes down a wider circle and with retarded steps sinks slowly in the west, twilight molting into moonlight and dawn. But before darkness comes, ah, what a riot of color. Here from the lofty promenade upon the roof of the hotel one watches the vagrant clouds gather about the declining orb of day, to revel in the mottled glory of its departing beams. For one moment all is molten white, and then the pearl-white peaks resolve themselves into fantastic shapes and fairy pictures glowing in tints of scarlet and white and every imaginable shade of purple, green, blue, and gold.

Below are the placid waters reflecting back the gorgeous scene above, forming within the sweep of a single glance a dozen landscapes, every one of which is as real as well as color. Long after night has fallen in the South the Northern horizon burns on. At 9 o'clock the glow has melted into gray. Half an hour later the gray has melted into blue on the water and darkness falls. A breeze blows up from the water and all the air is filled with the sweet breath from fields of clover and hay. Fireflies light their lamps in the dense shrubbery, but they are the only parasites, the mosquito and the other tiny plagues of darkness have no existence in the Northern night wind.

Sunset at Lake Minnetonka is a thing so beautiful at times as almost to become sacred. One loses in the contemplation of such nights all knowledge of the world, its trials and its sinful pleasures, and memory treasures up the scene to bring it back in after days as faint unto the spirit when rebelling against the agony of toil.

Dew there is none, even here at the lake side; the air is cold and dry and clear and in the sky the stars are as clear as daylight, soft, like lamps flickering in the night wind.

After the year of toil a week spent here in the bracing air amid scenes that bar the power of depression will make a season from some other world. It means the building up of the body and refreshment to the spirit. The tired eyes that stare in the world are rested on nothing but artificial beauty will find rest and inspiration in beholding nature's handiwork; the tired brain overtaxed with the strain of business care will find here food for contemplation that will gently force the relaxation it needs; the tired body wanted to toil will here gain rest and recuperation.

This noon the Post-Dispatch would gladly bestow on all its patrons, but while every one cannot be the recipients of its hospitality everyone has an opportunity to become its guest during the great trip to the North.

As announced last Sunday fifty Post-Dispatch want advertisers will be taken in a special car over the great Burlington Route to the shores of Lake Minnetonka, where they will be the guests of the Post-Dispatch at Hotel St. Louis during the first week of August. It will cost them absolutely nothing to make the trip. Leaving St. Louis they will be taken in a special car attached to the flying Twin City Express, and at the lake their hotel bill for one week will be paid by the paper.

Last Sunday Miss S. later of 822 Washington avenue and Mr. E. C. Harrington of 804 Cook avenue were the two Minnetonka excursionists selected from the want advertisers.

To-day from among the want advertisers during the past week the following accident policy holders whose names appear over the head of this column have been awarded excursion trips.

Next Sunday and every following Sunday during the month of July eight Minnetonka trip tickets will be distributed among those who insert want advertisements in the paper between Monday morning and 11 o'clock Saturday night.

As explained before, every want advertiser who seeks relief through the want columns of the Post-Dispatch will receive a numbered accident insurance policy, which, besides insuring him in case of accident, may also be the means of procuring him a trip to Lake Minnetonka, which will be the best kind of insurance against sickness during the summer, as well as insuring him the best of good times during his vacation.

The beauty of the matter is its simplicity and freedom from all conditions. The Post-Dispatch that it will be treated in a fair and upright manner and that no favoritism will be shown anyone in the distribution of prizes. The public is itself the arbiter and the matter is neither one of choice nor of the Post-Dispatch's giving.

All the accident policies which are given out are numbered; but the enumeration begins away up in the thousands and they are given out regardless of rotation, so that the man who puts in his "want ad" early Monday morning may get a policy numbered much higher than the man who puts in the last advertisement Saturday night. This is done so as to insure to all an equal opportunity to be numbered among those selected. Necessarily the business office keeps a strict account of all the "want ads" received in the counting-room, and a short time after the last "want ad" is inserted on Saturday night the business manager knows what is the total for the day and week.

Now when the eight persons whose numbered accident policies are in closest proximity to the total number of "want ads" inserted during the week will be distributed the trip to Lake Minnetonka.

This process will be carried out week after week in determining those who will be the recipients of the Post-Dispatch's hospitality during the trip over the great Burlington line to Lake Minnetonka for a week during August.

If you have an unfilled want-ad and who, in addition to the wants of everyday life, does not desire a week away from the city during the heated term—you will get one, perhaps both, fulfilled by seeking the columns of the Post-Dispatch.

MISSING FROM HOME.

Edward F. Church of South Orange, N. J., Has Disappeared.

NEW YORK, June 24.—Edward F. Church, who was President of the village of South Orange, is missing, and his family believe that he has been taken to some where inland. He was a well-known commission merchant at 20 Thomas Street New York.

Sheriff Gorman has received an attachment for $1,500 against him in favor of Herman Rawitzer on a draft of Richard Hey & Sons of Philadelphia, which was accepted by Mr. Church, but not paid. When the Sheriff went to Mr. Church's place of business to serve him, there were no assets to levy upon as fifteen pieces of goods were claimed by another man.

Reports from Trenton said that Mr. Church had been arrested, after having been considerable of the property of the Saxony Woolen Co. He was the selling agent in this city for the Saxony Woolen Co. The company at Trenton. The last seen of Mr. Church by his family was on Sunday morning when he had his horses hitched up to drive to Newark. He intended to go from Trenton to New York City.

"I'll be back at the New York office on Monday morning," he said to his son just before leaving.

His family have written to Trenton for information regarding him and learned that he had not been seen since. It is their opinion that he had been taken to some where inland and that of Mr. Church's friends—that his disappearance was connected with business difficulties and other troubles. The acceptance for $1,500 which he was unable to meet caused him to lose his job. His business affairs were in bad shape and he was unable to get redemptions. The family have been unable to locate him further than Newark.

With regard to the Saxony Woolen Co. of Trenton, a friend of his said last night: "Mr. Church owns a controlling interest in the company and has pledged any of the stock as security for his debts it is his own stock. He was one of the last men in the world to do anything crooked in the matter."

Mr. Church reported himself in January last to be worth $50,000, partly in stock of the Saxony Woolen Co. and partly in other property. He was a well-known manufacturer in New York. At his office in New York yesterday it was admitted that he was a resident of Trenton. Mr. Church was largely interested in the Trenton Woolen Co., which failed about two years ago. He was appointed receiver of the company and has not yet finished his duties. He was a resident of Trenton, where he was last seen. He was a resident of Trenton, where he was last seen. He was a resident of Trenton, where he was last seen.

ALTON.

Fell From the Bluffs Into a Quarry—Plasma Assembly Notes.

A stranger from Portage Des Sioux, Mo., giving his name as Samuel Hard, got off a boat here last night, and wandering around in an intoxicated condition fell over the bluff into Coppinger's quarry. When found this morning his hip was broken and he was seriously injured. He was taken to the hospital, where his injuries were attended to.

The St. Louis Stock Club were its annual excursion to Grafton to-night on the steamer Cherokee.

At an informal meeting held last night at Alton Junction it was decided to change the name of the village to East Alton.

The funeral of Wm. Bell took place this morning at 9 o'clock from St. Patrick's Church and was largely attended. The Haggood Plow Works, of which deceased was an employer, shut down in order to let the employees attend the funeral. Rev. J. Walton conducted the service. The Presbyterian Sunday-school will give its annual picnic at the Plaza on Sunday afternoon, Wednesday.

An effort being made to build a mission chapel in Upper Middlebrook. Wm. Elliot Smith has donated the lot and several hundred dollars have been subscribed for the building. It is to be dedicated the new church will be erected during the month of July.

The funeral of John Bell took place from the Upper Middlebrook Church this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Walton. The deceased was a member of the Lodge of Free Masons and a large number of friends. Miss Rose Miller of this city won the gold medal at the Des Moines State Fair last night.

President John Ulrich, Col. A. F. Rodgers and Mr. Armstrong were leaving the morning and evening for the water-pipes at the Plaza Assembly Grounds. Considerable for the material have been made with St. Louis parties and work will commence soon. The 120-foot sewer has been completed and the sanitary condition of the grounds has been improved.

Mr. W. W. Buttolph left last night on a short visit to Bloomington, Ill.

Underwood of the Alton Gas and Electric Light Co. is here from New York on business.

Rev. H. H. Jamison, Pastor of the Colored Baptist Church, has returned and will go to Denver. He will leave July 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Kaufman left this morning for Spirit Lake, Ia., where Mrs. Kaufman will spend the summer.

Mrs. W. A. Ferguson left yesterday for Denver to visit her daughter, Mrs. John Wilson.

A Good Thing for the People.

Mr. J. A. Le Claire of the Stoddard Watch Co., 118 North Sixth street, has just returned from the East, where he purchased an immense stock of diamonds and watches, which he offers at same prices that others sell for cash on easy payments. This is a popular idea, and Mr. Le Claire is meeting with great success.

Frank White's Disappearance.

QUINCY, Ill., June 24.—Frank White, son of Ex-Mayor L. D. White, recently bade his wife and children good-bye at noon and returned, as they supposed, to his employment. Since then nothing has been heard of him. He had been acting very queerly before leaving and was constantly complaining of his head, and to his wife would say he did not know what was the matter with him, unless he was losing his mind. He was very despondent at times and tears were sometimes shed by his wife that he is deranged. Nothing can be learned of his whereabouts.

Fourth of July Rates.

The Missouri Pacific Railway and Iron Mountain route will sell tickets to and from all points at greatly reduced rates. Tickets on sale 3d and 4th, good for return up to and including July 1.

Missouri Chauvinism.

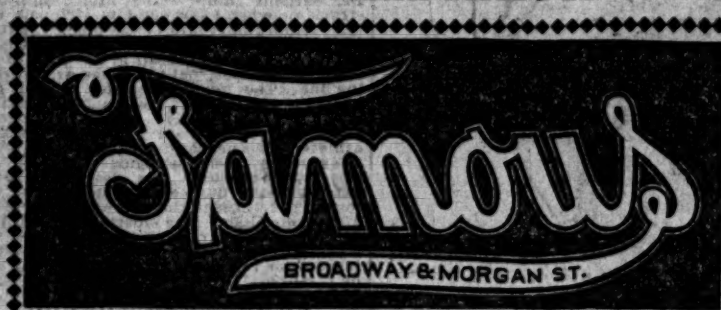

SEBASTIA, Mo., June 24.—The State Chautauqua has set aside Monday as a suffrage day. A joint debate will take place between Mrs. Anna Shaw and Dr. G. C. Woods of Secorville College at Neosho, Mo. A lively discussion is expected. Prof. A. H. Merrill of Vanderbilt University is here, and this evening presented his famous monologue of "Moralism."

The attendance has largely increased.

SCOTT'S CLAM'S Picnic at Bartold's Grove, on the Mo. Pac. Ry., on the Fourth of July. Round trip ticket (including admission), 50c.

Tale Told by Travelers in Central America.

Paul, which recently arrived Panama, has found its way to the San Francisco newspaper. It is of a Russian, Herbert L. B. who had become an American citizen.

Some time he lived in New York. A few years ago he started to try his luck in America. He was conversant in Spanish language, and soon after returning to Paraguay he obtained a Lieutenant's commission in the army. About a year after he resigned and took up a plantation. When the revolution broke out, a few months later he was appointed a colonel, in the forces of the insurgents under Gen. Savabias, and was one of Brummer's best friends. The rash young Colonel soon won considerable fame as a warrior. He also attracted the attention of Gen. Santague.

...was Col. Perlotte, the commande
...ry regiment, who swore to kill Br
...first chance he got. Brummer
...to be on his guard, but he
...and said he could take care of h
...first trouble came when the pair

in a hotel and were given seats. Each other Brummer, who had been rather heavily, made some remarks, and he struck Brummer on the head. Brummer spoke, and before the astonished guests realized what was up he had seen, dragged him from the room. Brummer was almost dead. It was some time before he was able to resume his duties in the service.

Suddenly he was surrounded by troopers, thrown on a horse and taken into the mountains. He was cloistered for two days, when Col. Perillotte arrived and informed Brummer that the time had come when he would have his revenge.

terrible beating he had received. Hammer that a slow, lingering doubt of his fate. Perlotte then spat in his face and ordered him placed alive, where he was laid on the floor. His hands and feet securely bound, were piled in front of the entrance. Hammer was left to his fate. Perlotte feigned to be as much surprised as ever over his rival's disappearance. He read the report that he had received.

Brummer would never have been again had not one of the troops sent Perlotte, given information. Vagues to send a squad of men, where, on rolling back the stone, was found more dead than alive. One expected that Brummer would be on sight, but he did not. Perlotte's friends began to hint of heart and lost courage. But Brummer waiting to clear the road for from the country after his vengeance was complete. He was in the night, while going his rounds inspecting sentinels, Perlotte was suddenly bound, gagged and thrown into a cage by Brummer; by daylight the following morning he found himself a dozen miles from his quarters in a very sparsely settled country. Here Brummer dragged of words of any kind, so that his friend would not know that he was in the land and his scheme. It cost $500 apiece to hire three men and a few big logs to build a bridge across the river. The captain and his men wanted a friend with ready money to go with them to the land. They asked him if he thought the top of land there was likely to be a good one. He said he thought so, but that there was any danger of the shorts being in whisky barrels on them in making the deal. He said he would go with his friend's explanations, Alitch can put in $1,000 and did so.

Mr. Alitch had a lot of barrels on hand, they didn't want to merit of being long barrels. He knew it was a good deal of money and a case of wine. Well, sir, it was a good deal of money. He had $1,700, beside 6 per cent interest on the money he had invested.

Mr. Alitch's review of the position of the land for the second week in June was not so good. The agricultural reports continue to be so good, so far as the wheat is concerned, that the present dry weather is not beneficial.

For spring corn, forage and food, there have been some local showers, many places the drought has returned, and the general opinion as to the crop is that it will be during the summer condition shows a somewhat unfavorable prospect, especially so with regard to oats, which are in the hands of the farmer, advanced in price all over the country. Holland the weather has been cold and the crops are somewhat retarded, but since become warmer. The wheat plant is now blooming. The straw will be very short. The corn crop is not so good as last year, but there have been copious and beneficial rains all over the country, and good results are to be expected. The wheat in the Empire there has been considerable rain in most districts, which has been much to the benefit of the crop. It is expected to be decidedly less than last year, but the crop is not so much good to rye and other cereals. The straw is expected to be decidedly less than last year, but the crop is not so much good to rye and other cereals. ## STUDY YOUR STYLE.

A DRESSMAKER TELLS WOMEN HOW TO LOOK STYLISHLY DRESSED.

A little woman, who makes a big salary as a dressmaker, declares that there is a secret in being well dressed. It is not the result of imitation, but comes, she believes, from the patient study of two things, the person who is to wear the gown and the gown itself. A woman must, she adds, look like the latest fashion-plate come to life and yet not be stylish in the "sense" of that word. Her clothes may likely look as though made for someone else.

The woman who has made a serious study of dress effect does not fall into this error. Her gowns have a touch of individuality. The current fashions have been adapted to meet her special requirements. If the sloping shoulder of the "1930" gown does not gracefully conform to her particular style she never appears in a gown of that fashion.

For instance, here is a lace-trimmed gown which the little dressmaker herself has made for a woman who is tall and slender, with dark hair and brilliant complexion. It is made of crepe silk crepon, which sets off the wearer's high color and dark hair. The deep shadow of point de Bruges lace which trims the bottom of the skirt has a tendency to diminish her height. The front breadth is left unadorned. The lace falls in cascades at the sides and in the back quite envelops the rose-tinted foundation of crepon. The bodice is tight fitting. A jacket effect is produced by the arrangement of the lace. On the shoulders and ornamenting the neckline of lace around the bottom of the skirt are wide ruffles of narrow green velvet ribbon.

Another gown from this little woman's workshop combines both the "1930" and Di-

In Dark Blue Taffeta Silk. retro style and is designed for a woman who has a fondness for things tailor made and yet is conscious of the severity of this style. The dress is dark blue taffeta silk, trimmed with Valenciennes lace, and would be becoming to a woman with auburn hair. The skirt has "much" of its fullness drawn to the back. The lace ruffles have a dressy effect, counteracted by the severity of the style shown in the jacket. Here are much in evidence the Directorate revers. This gives the suggestion of the tailor-made fashion, while a softer effect is produced by the vest of Valenciennes lace, which is arranged in a double jabot. For the sleeve a source of lace is inserted in the silk puff and then puffs out again at the elbow. The lower half of the sleeve is tight fitting, with a fall of lace at the wrist.

Mrs. Kendall's Den.

A writer in Women gives this account of Mrs. Kendall's den: "Bright sunshine and the scent of magnolia greeted us as the door opened on a quaint, charming room with a wonderful yellow paper and predominating tints of old gold and bronze green. On the walls were portraits of Madame Bonaldi's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Robertson. The doctrine of heredity was well supported in the irresistible twinkle of the eyes, the sensitive nostrils, and the keen intelligence of expression. From the father to daughter, and the clever, kindly face of Tom Robertson seems to bid us welcome to the sanctum of his youngest sister. The younger generation is represented by the smiling portraits of Mrs. Kendall's daughter, Margaret, Ethel and Dorothy. An excellent portrait of Mr. Kendall by a famous painter hangs on the wall. The charming trinkets which constitute the atmosphere of a fashionable woman surround us on all sides. And, best of all, some of the double doors which divide this little territory from the rest of the house are closed, and the bustle and roar of London might be miles distant. All is beauty and peace."

JUNE BRIDES AND BRIDESMAIDS.

SELECTED RECIPES.

RUBBARD PIE.—For the paste allow one cupful of sifted flour, a teaspoonful of sugar, four tablespoonfuls of butter and about an eighth of a cupful of cold water. Put the flour, butter and sugar into a chopping bowl and chop until the ingredients are well mixed; add the water and chop again until a paste is formed. Place on ice for an hour. Prepare a heaping cupful of chopped rubbards and add to it a cupful of sugar, a teaspoonful of flour and one well-beaten egg. Roll out half the paste for the under crust of the pie, fill with the rubbards and cover with the remainder of the paste, pressing carefully together the edges of the paste. Bake in a quick oven about forty minutes.

COCONUT PORRIDGE.—Three eggs, one large potato, one-half cup of coconut, one pint of milk, one tablespoonful of butter, sugar to taste and a little salt. Boil and mash the potato and add the sugar, butter and salt, then the beaten eggs, and lastly the milk, in which part of the coconut has been soaked. Reserve the white of one egg for frosting; add to it the rest of the coconut and spread a little white sugar over the top.

YALAP WAFLES.—Add enough warm water to one quart of flour to make a batter. Add one tablespoonful of yeast. When light beat two eggs, add yolks, separating, add to them one-half of a cup of milk and one-half of a teaspoonful of salt. Mix with the batter and bake in waffle irons.

CREAMED BEEF.—Scrape perfectly lean beef to pulp, mince, put in a pan with salt, pepper, one tablespoonful of water, two tablespoonfuls of rich cream, butter the size of an egg. Cook two minutes, stirring constantly.

FASHIONS FOR THE BABIES.

The infant's dress here shown is a dainty garment suggested by The Delineator. The full skirt is of regulation length and is gathered at the top and sewed to the body, which is shaped by shoulder and under-arm seams and closed at the center of the back with buttonholes and buttons. A V-shaped tucking of the material, adjusted in handstitched tucks, is arranged upon the front; its edges are outlined with tiny beads and frills of embroidered edging, and a rosette formed of edging decorates the lower edge of the body at each side of the V.

The full puff sleeves are finished with wristbands, which are cut bias from the material tucked like the facing. The lower edge of each waistband is trimmed with a frill of edging. The neck is daintily ornamented with a frill of edging.

All sorts of pretty cotton fabrics are adaptable to the mode, but preference is accorded sheer muslin, dimity, lawn and Swiss. Embroidered and tucked foundations will make pretty dresses of this kind. Body may be cut from the flouncing or elaborately decorated with lace, embroidery, ribbon, etc. A suitable decoration for a dress of white batiste may be contributed by drawn work separated by feather stitching. Both skirt and waist may be thus ornamented and lace may trim the neck and wrists.

The cloak in the second cut is well shaped and comfortable and is here shown in dotted cashmere and plain silk. It is of regulation length, has pretty flounces at each side of the closing, which is made invisible at the center of the front, and is shaped at the back by a center seam, in which is included a Watteau tuck, which widens gradually all the way down. The full, puff sleeves droop in regulation fashion over round cuffs, finished with silk applied to the smooth lining and the wrists are prettily decorated with feather stitching. At the neck is a collar in two sections, which flare slightly at the front and back and are trimmed along their free edges with feather stitching.

The cap is made of white corded silk. The front fits the head closely and is slightly gathered at the back and joined to a circular crown. A ribbon possum decorates the top and ribbon ties are bowed at the left side.

Infants' cloaks are variously developed in silk of heavy quality and numerous soft wools, such as serge, cashmere, French flannel, etc., and they are invariably white, with trimmings of lace, ribbon, feather-stitching or embroidery. The cap may be made of silk, lawn, muslin, wool, Swiss or India muslin, and some or salacious embroidery, lace, ruchings, frills, etc., may trim it as elaborately as desired.

GENERAL HINTS.

The Hair and Scalp, and How to Keep Them Clean.

A poor woman has no business with a lot of hair. Only a maid or a French barber can keep an abundant head of hair in order and this luxury is not within the means of the average woman. Mothers of large families, who are obliged to do their own work; girls who are employed in shops, factories and offices all day; dressmakers and operators on clothing, who have long hours, close quarters and interminable worry; girl students who are obliged to help with the house work after school hours, and professional women, who are fighting for every inch of ground, should wear minimum "crowns" of glory. It takes a great deal more time to keep a head of hair clean than the aforesaid women can spare; and if the head cannot be properly cared for it should be shorn. No hair is better than neglected tresses. A bald head is not a beautiful object, but an untidy scalp is a sure indication of low breeding.

Half a dozen short bristle brushes a year and an hour's hard work every day is the bottom price of a clean head; if the hair is only and thick it will take more time and a dozen or more shampooes to clean and invigorate the scalp. Save the fancy hair brushes for company. Get a barber's brush, the largest you can find, with the shortest bristles. The white hairs are the best. They are ugly and expensive. Hand-made brushes retail at from $1.50 to $2.75 each, but they are strong, and one stroke cleans the hair and the scalp. In the hands of an attendant or obliging relative a brush of this sort will clean a head in a day. It will make any head of hair become soft and clean. No girl can brush her own wig properly, unless she is possessed of slight-of-hand ability. Many women who do not realize just the treatment the hair needs take their own comb and brush to the barber shop, where they are especially of children's hair-cutting to have the work done. They wait hours and days when customers are not likely to drop in. Two visits to the barber shop or hairdressing parlor a week will give the hair all the attention required. In some places this brushing costs 50 cents and in others 25 cents. No tonic of any sort is needed. Just get a brushing, and insist on having every stroke touch the scalp. If the head is clean the hair will be clean.

Many women never wash their heads. Some heads need washing; others do not. Scrubbing excites the oil glands. They open, the secretion pours out, the hair is greasy, and continued brushing makes it glossy and beautiful. Where there is much oil it is necessary to wash it out, otherwise the accumulation of dust will cause the hair to mat. Very oily hair is very apt to become unpleasant. It is a day of vermin on one's material, dandruff, etc., is more noticeable on the oily hair than on a coarse, drier sort. The hair should be washed with a shampoo. Warm water and castile soap are essential. Dry the hair with a towel, dry it with a hairbrush. If the eyes are sensitive, put on a 10-cent straw, crownless hat. It is a good idea to have a hairbrush. A stiff neck is a stiff neck. If there is no sun the tresses can be faded or split dried.
